Storm Destruction Felt Over The Entire South

Number of Lives Lost—Particularly Bad in South Central Kentucky and Tennessee—Property Damage General

NINE ARE REPORTED DEAD IN KENTUCKY

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Mar. 13.—Gradual restoration of wire facilities in the storm swept area brought additional details of death and destruction. The dead neared forty, injured approximately two hundred and damage to lines of communication and business buildings is reported at a million dollars in Tennessee, seventeen dead, seventy-five injured in Kentucky and nine lost lives and nearly eighty were injured in Ohio. Two were killed and others are dead in widely separated sections.

Restoration in Kentucky

By Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Mar. 13.—Belated reports of the damage by the storm that swept across Kentucky Sunday night was made possible by restoration of wire service indicated today the death toll in the state was not more than nine, three each in Logan and Madison counties, two in Edmonson and one in Greenup. Work of establishing communication between Kentucky points has been pushed with the result that all parts of the state heard from reported all those injured are expected to recover. Larue county was the scene of considerable property damage It escaped without loss of life. Paducah was isolated all day, but it was reported today no fatalities in Nelson county, another point cut off, also escaped with property damage.

Thirty Dead in Tennessee

By Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Mar. 13.—With the known death toll of thirty persons, nearly one hundred injured and several million in property damage, Tennessee today is recovering from one of the worst storms in its history. Twenty known dead in Pinson and in Deanburg. Both of which were practically wiped off the map. Nashville and Middle Tennessee suffered heavy damage.

By Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Mar. 13.—At least five persons were killed in the south Central Kentucky storm. Last reports from Richmond said three lost their lives in that vicinity, including William Hall, his young daughter, and a baby of a neighbor who sought refuge in the home form the storm. The dwelling was lifted from its foundation and hurled fifty yards. The other dead are Mrs. Jennie Dossy, Mrs. Margaret Cox, near Brownsville in Edmonson county. An unverified report from South Union said Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stahl and one son, killed in Logan county. Lexington, Winchester and many other points in the state report considerable property damage.

Dennis Boggs, 9, was killed and five other children injured, two seriously, when the roof was blown from the high school building at South Portsmouth, Ky, and carried into the school yard when the children were playing.

Telegraph and telephone lines in many parts of the state were prostrated. Paducah was isolated from Louisville until late in the day.

At Lexington the betting shed at the Kentucky Racing association track was wrecked, plateglass store fronts shattered and telephone poles and trees felled.

At Winchester, a wall of a school building was demolished, plateglass windows were blow in and trees uprooted. One man was slightly hurt. The wind tore away a corner bedroom in a dwelling where a young woman slept. She was unhurt.

Sixteen Dead in Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Mar. 13.—The total number of dead from yesterday's storm in Pinson, Tennessee, was estimated at 16, with 75 persons injured, according to reports received here from Pinson and Jackson, Tenn., late last night. The injured have been removed to a hospital at Jackson. Some of them are reported in critical condition and may not recover.

Destruction at Cincinnati

By Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Mar. 13.—Destructive winds which tore down telephone and telegraph wires interfered yesterday with officials of the Southern Railway trying to ascertain damage caused when a train from New Orleans ran into the rear of a passenger train at Pulaski, Ky.

Several Dead in Georgia

ATLANTA, Mar. 13.—Several persons are said to have been seriously injured at Johnsonville, Georgia, during a wind storm late Sunday. All of the injured were in a house which was blown down by the high wind.

LARGE CANADIAN KIWANIS INVASION

Nearly Five Hundred From Canada Expected—Atlanta Making Elaborate Plans

ATLANTA, Mar. 13—Probably the greatest "Canadian invasion" which ever has penetrated the United States and certainly the South, will be the delegation of Kiwanians which will visit Atlanta May 28 to 31 inclusive, when the Kiwanis International Convention is held.

Several special trains are being planned for the trip, which will include nearly 500 Kiwanians from the fifty clubs in Canada. The convention was held last year in Toronto, when George Ross, Commissioner of Finance of that city, was elected international president, and the Canadians will return the Americans' visit this summer by sending record delegation on the long trip.

One of the features of the Canadian invasion will be the famous brass band of the Forty-eighth Highlanders' Regiment, which fought over-seas throughout the war. The Highlanders will give concerts in many cities all along the route, dressed in their uniforms of Scotch kilts.

Indications are that the Atlanta convention will be the largest ever held by Kiwanis. The International Program Committee met recently in Atlanta, made a tour of the city, and completed a program of business and entertainment which will occupy almost every moment of the time. One of the entertainment features is to be an old fashioned Southern barbecue, cooked by noted ante-bellum negroes over open pit fires, at which 5,000 persons will be served, while a glimpse of the "Old South" will be seen in "Plantation Days", a musical revue which will depict the customs of olden days.

Atlanta, in true Southern manner has issued a special invitation to the wives and daughters of Kiwanians and a big committee of ladies will look after their entertainment while the men are engaged in business sessions.

INCOME TAX BLANKS OUT—TOMORROW LAST DAY TO MAIL

Tomorrow is the last day that income tax blanks can be made out and reach the internal revenue collector on March 15 the last day allowed for payment of such taxes. A rush for blanks has been made at the local postoffice during the past few days with the result that the blanks are entirely exhausted now. R. K. Judy wired for more blanks but they have not reached here yet.

It is thought that an extension of time will be allowed those who failed to make out returns by reason of the fact that they had no blanks. Those not having the blaks, however should notify the income tax collector at once of the reasons for not making the return Those who have paid income taxes on previous years were furnished with blanks by mail. An additional supply was left at the postoffice for those who have not made returns before.

LOSS OF MEMORY IN WITNESSES AT CIRCUIT COURT SEEMS CURRENT

Loss of memory seems to be an ailment prevalent among men who are witnesses in cases now being tried in circuit court. This peculiar form of amnesia frequently blocks the proceedings of court and stays the hand of justice. It is thought that a cure has been found for this psychological malady now, however.

An important witness, testifying in a liquor case this morning, stated that he did not remember the case in question, did not remember anything connected with it.

"You see how it is, judge," the prosecuting attorney said, "it seems that this court is to be blocked by this man who refuses to talk."

"If you have forgotten all about this thing that happened a few weeks ago, then you don't know who you are, the names of your brothers or anything I think a little jail sentence will refresh your memory," the judge told the prisoner.

The commonwealth's attorney ordered the witness to appear before the grand jury on the charge of forgery and ordered the others connected with the case to appear as witnesses.

ODDFELLOWS PLAN LARGE ADDITION

Size of Present Building Will Be Doubled If Present Plans Materialize

Plans for building an addition that will double the present size of the Odd Fellow Hall on Twenty-first street are being considere by I. O. O F. members and a committee was appointed last night to confer with trustees of the building in regard to the matter Should the trustees favor the project, they will get estimates concerning the cost from builders and cotractors and report to the lodge members as soon as possible

The lodge room of the building has been outgrown by the increase in membership of the various secret orders which meet there and it is mainly for this reason that the addition has been considered. The third floor of the building will become merged into the present lodge room, thus doubling its present size and making the room fifty feet wide and sixty-seven feet long. The second story of the new building will be made into a five or six room apartment while the first floor will be rented to some business firm.

Should the plans for the building materialize it will be built on the north side of the present building on property owned by the I. O. O. F. lodge. If the estimates of contractors are satisfactory to members of the organization, work will begin on the building as soon as plans are made and building materials can be obtained. The members are enthusiastic over the proposition and are hopeful that the proposition will become a certainty.

Kiwanians Meet Tomorrow

Fred Mooman will be chairman of the Kwanis KClub luncheon at the Hotel Cumberland grill room tomorrow noon at 12:15 o'clock. Tom Yarber is announced as speaker by the program. The luncheon was changed from Thursday to Wednesday because the chairman must be out of town on Thursday.

TIP LONG TRIAL STARTS TODAY

Eighteen Indictments Returned By Grand Jury—Burton Jones Case Tomorrow

The trial of Tip Long, charged with the murder of Jess Brady several weeks ago, was begun in circuit court late this afternoon. Names of witnesses were called, most of them being present, and the traverse jury was made up Five jurors admitted to having conscientious scruples against inflicting a death penalty should the law and the facts warrant and were excused from duty. Five others were called to take their places. It is likely that the trial will be continued through Wednesday morning before it is finished

Eighteen true bills were returned by the grand jury this morning, most of them being for petty liquor law violations Names of those against whom indictments have been returned have not been announced.

A number of liquor cases were tried during the session of court this morning. One of the outstanding features of this session of court is that defendants charged with violating prohibition laws are found guilty in nearly every case. The jury goes almost to the limit in fixing the penalty also.

The case of Burton Jones is docketed for tomorrow and will be heard as soon as the Tip Long case has been concluded.

The court room has been packed with witnesses and visitors today. All the standing room in the aisles has been used so that it was almost impossible for witnesses to go in or out. Even the halls and corridors of the city hall have been packed.

NATIONAL HEALTH EXHIBIT TO BE HELD IN LOUISVILLE

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Mar. 13.—Work is progressing rapidly on the second annual National Health Exposition which will be held here April 26 to May 5 under the auspices of the State Board of Health, the state medical and dental societies and the medical and dental schools of the University of Louisville

Scientific and educational exhibits will be made by most of the state institutions, by the U. S. Health Service and by more than seventy civic and charitable organizations, Dr. Arthur T. McCormack, secretary of the State Board of Health and president of the exposition, announced today.

Largest and most important of the exhibits will be those of the medical and dental societies and schools and the Public Health Nursing association, held jointly. Included will be X-ray and radium displays, a baby clinic and a special clinic where all visitors who request it will receive free a thorough physical examination.

Of the limited number of free examinations made at the exposition last year, about 10 per cent showed incipient cases of tuberculosis, cancer and other grave diseases, all unsuspected by those examined. Results were so startling it was decided to make the free examinations an important feature of this year's exposition.

CREDIT TO FARMER WILL CONTINUE

Information Given at Request of Capper Who Had Doubted Its Continuance

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 13.—War Finance Corporation today gave assurance to farmers that its policies respecting credit to ariculture will be continuegd along lines which are limited only by provisions of law. The statement was made in reply to requests made by Senator Capper and others. Capper said there had been some uneasiness that fewer loans were to be made this year and that policy changes were imminent because of the enactment of a new farm credit law.

BIRD QUARTET TO SING IN LOUISVILLE MUSIC WEEK

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Mar. 13.—A unique feature of the program for the Music Week celebration in Louisville, April 8 to 14 is a number of selections to be given by a quartet of birds, according to announcement by members of the Music Week Committee. This would mark the first time that birds have appeared on a musical program here, it is said.

The birds will be brought here from Chicago and will have a place on each day's program.

AGITATION OVER POSSIBLE LOSS OF STATE AID

City Street Repair Question Again To Forefront—Mayor Says Matter to Be Taken Up As Soon As Specifications Made

KIWANIS CLUB TO CONSIDER PROPOSITION TOMORROW

Considerable agitation has been caused in Middlesboro by the report that the city may lose state aid on the city streets if work isnot begun at once to make repairs on these streets.

A statement was recently issued from H. H. Asher, members of the State Highway Commission, in which he was quoted that the state road would build across Yellow Creek at Yellow Hill, coming around Middlesboro to join the main road at the mountain, if Middlesboro did not start repair work.

Many prominent local citizens are discussing the matter today and they are urging that something be done at once on the long delayed street proposition, so as to run no risk of losing state aid. It is understood that the Kiwanis Club will take the matter up in their regular meeting tomorrow.

M. G. Hubbard, chairman of the streets committee, said today that he had been assured by Mayor Keeney that the matter was being attended to as quickly as possible. City Engineer J. C. Richardson, he said, is at work now making specifications for the street, which are to be submitted to the state department. The work had been held because these specifications had not been completed. Mayor Keeney is out of the city today but is expected back tomorrow.

WILL TAKE DOWN SWINGING BRIDGE

Council Votes to Allow L. & N. Sidetrack to New Lumber Company Property

Ordinance allowing the L and N Railway the right to construct a sidetrack to the property of the City Lumber and Supply company, passed the second reading at the meeting of the city council last night.

R. L. Maddox, city attorney, was given authority to collect all delinquent taxes. It was said that the percentage of unpaid taxes is much smaller than usual, owing to the vigilance of Frank Kearns, tax-collecter. Fully ninety-five per cent of the taxes were paid last year.

Resolutions providing for the removal of the swinging bridge which crosses the canal near the high school building were passed by the body. M. G. Hubbard said that he had recently seen children crossing it when the raging waters of the canal almost touched it.

A number of bills were paid, including one from Bell county charging $44 for transportation of prisoners from Middlesboro to Pineville and vice versa. Another bill for $29 from a stenographer for record work on an appealed city case was also voted to be paid.

The greater part of the meeting was taken up in a discussion of the hospital proposition which was supposed to have been settled two weeks ago. Mayor J. H. Keeney demurred at signing the contract because the phrase "for hospital services" was not in the instrument. The councilmen, however, were in favor of leaving the contract as it stands and the mayor agreed to sign it.

NOTED BARITONE TO GIVE RECITAL HERE IN APRIL

Richard Hale, noted baritone of New York City will give a recital in Middlesboro about the middle of April and music lovers here are already looking forward to it as a noteworthy event of the season. Mr. Hale has given recitals the past three years in the leading cities of the United States. Middlesboro was fortunate enough to get him to come here because of an open date he had in going from St. Louis to New Orleans.

A THOUGHT

Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord.—1 Cor. 15:58.

MODERN COURT PROCEDURE

Judge J. G. Forrester's pungent comments on present day court procedure yesterday indicates that the bench is not to blame for conditions which render it almost impossible to bring the guilty to justice. An increasing laxity in the enforcement of laws, the developments of a highly technical court and a general disinclination on the part of the citizens to do their part in law enforcement and court procedure seem to be the reasons for the deplorable conditions.

Recent statistics show that fifty per cent of murders in England are followed by capital punishment while in this country only two per cent of the slayers are executed. Figures also show a corresponding decrease in the number of homicides there. It is conceded now by the bench as well as investigators of criminal conditions that the highly technical system of jurisprudence is largely responsible. Conditions have come to such a pass that it is almost impossible to begin a criminal trial promptly or for the trial to be conducted in such a manner that the defendant will not be entitled to a new hearing.

Since the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment, practically all the state legislation has been in favor of makers and vendors of illicit beverages. Officers must have search warrants and these must be sworn to by persons who have positive knowledge that whiskey is being made, stored or sold a a given place before a search can be made. Even if they are caught the violators often succeed in evading trial and having it postponed from term to term. A witness in court here yesterday stated that he had been present for six consecutive terms of court and that the trial had been postponed each time on account of the absence of another important witness. Papers were in evidence to show that the man had been legally summoned, but what did it amount to? He did not appear. Isn't there some punishment to mete out to persons who thus deliberately refuse several times in succession to appear as witnesses?

Punishment is entirely too light for convicted persons. They are usually fined, but having plenty of money derived from their nefarious liquor traffic, moonshiners and bootlegers pay the fine without a murmur and then calmly proceed to make the money back at their old trade. Light jail sentences can be given but it is a well known fact that not many alleged prominent citizens ever go to jail.

The majority of the citizens can, by helping the courts and the officers, do much toward decreasing the liquor law violations. But as long as they argue that the liquor laws a failure and that "there will always be whiskey" the present state of affairs will continue. As Judge Forrester said, persons voicing those sentiments are not in favor of law enforcement.

Those who permit their chickens to run at large do not deny that it is a fowl trick.

Fellowship of Prayer

TUESDAY

The Peril Of Riches

"How hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter the kingdom of God." Mark 10:24.

Read Mark 10:17-31.

"God has made money a part of his world. He has ordained that money shall play a prominent part in all human life."

MEDITATION: Money by itself is neither good nor bad. The use to which it is put determines its moral value. The rich are in peril lest they come to believe that money can buy all things; and forget that the best things are beyond price. What is my part in making and spending the world's wealth? God created it all for good.

HYMN:
Take my life and let it be
Consecrated, Lord to thee;
Take my moments and my days,
Let them flow in ceaseless praise.

PRAYER: O Lord Jesus, give us more charity, more self-denial, more likeness to thee, teach us to sacrifice our comforts too theirs, and our likings, for the sake of doing good. Make us kindly in thought, gentle in word, generous in deed. Teach us it is better to give than to receive; better to forget ourselves than to put ourselves forward; better to minister than to be ministered unto. And unto thee, the Lord of love, be glory and praise forever. Amen.

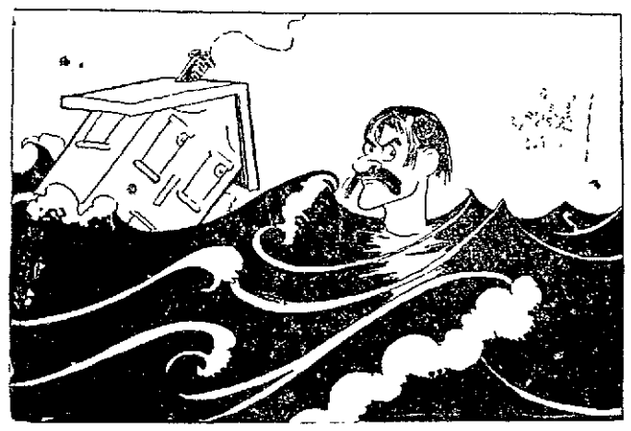
Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton



The fountain on top of Nancy's head kept running and running. Mix-Up Land kept filling up and filling up with water, and Jack Straw, the rogue, became more and more frightened as he saw every thing climbing or swimming while he couldn't do either—on account of having a peg leg.

He would have turned the magic ring on his left thumb and stopped the water, but he couldn't tell where it was coming from—whether a big wave from the ocean had washed over the land, or a cloud had burst, or a river had backed up or what.

First the grass disappeared, then the flowers, then the bushes. Everything that could swim was swimming and everything that could climb was climbing, everyone who had a boat to row in was rowing, and everyone who had a raft to float on was floating on it.

"My, my, my! I'll have to do something and that soon," declared Jack. "I wish I knew where all that water was coming from."

Nancy and Nick had long ago been covered up with water. It had gone right over the tops of their heads.

But Nick was marble and Nancy was marble (being changed by magic) and so they didn't feel a thing.

Finally Jack Straw had only the tip of his nose sticking out of the water. "I do believe I'll have to turn my ring and change Mix-Up Land back into Apple-Pie Land!" he said and sighed a gurgly sigh But something better still happened. The ring slid off his hand into the water and it was never found again.

Before you could say "scat" everything was set to rights. The water disapeared and there were the mountains and trees and grass and houses and pigs and chickens and cows and wagons and everything just as it should be. Mix-Up Land was Apple-Pie Land again and King Even-Steven was on the throne in his palace.

And Jack Straw was back cobbling shoes—just as he used to be.

And best of all, the Twins were little boy and girl again, and on their way home.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

LOUISIANA

By Berton Braley

Tullulah, La.

When you're navigating highways
Or Louisiana byways,
Where the roads are mostly bogs and pools,
Take a tip from me—I've "bin there,"
If you'd rather not sink in there,
Hire a darkey with a team of mules.

Add a shovel and a pickax to your tools,
Put your chains on, do not emulate the fools;
Then to pull you out of hollows,
And of clay-filled slippery wallows,
Hire a darkey with a team of mules.

When your motor's wildest action
Cannot give you any traction,
And you're waiting while your engine cools
When the road's beyond all clearance
What a joy is the appearance
Of a darkey with a team of mules.

It's the canniest of driving rules,
And it should be taught to children in the schools,
If you ever chance to plan a
Winter trip through Loosey-anna,
Hire a darkey with a team of mules.

He will save you from morasses
Where the muck is heaped in masses,
And the rotting vegetation drools;
Just as sure as you are driving,
If you're planning on arriving,
Hire a darkey with a team of mules.

If you'd rather not be prey for ghouls,
Carry ropes and block and tackle with your tools;
Then to aid you—oh be heedful—
You'll assuredly be needful
Of a darkey with a team of mules!

One sign of spring is motorists detouring marble games.

AN INTIMATE STORY OF INNERMOST EMOTIONS REVEALED IN PRIVATE LETTERS

Copyright 1923 - NEA Service Inc.

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO LESLIE HAMILTON

You will notice that I have written no salutation at the beginning of this letter, Leslie darling.

It is not because I want to be unconventional, sweetheart, but because I have found no endearing word in our language that adequately embodies what you are to me.

When I put you on the train this noon—after three weeks of such thrilling happiness as I did not think could come to anyone on this earth—my heart became leaden at the thought that I would not see you for at least a month, and my only comfort was that at the end of that time I would go to you to bring you back with me always.

After leaving you I came back to the office and plunged into work. Honestly, Leslie dear, I wanted to forget you—it hurt me so when I remembered and realized that when night came you would be hundreds of miles away from me.

Oh, my girl, my girl how am I going to get through the next weary day and weeks—and perhaps months? You know that I think it is foolishness that we must have a wedding and that you must have a trousseau if, because of them, we will lose our lives all this eternity of companionship and love?

And to think that three weeks ago, my darling, I did not know there was such a girl as you in all the world. It doesn't seem possible that I could have lived all these years without in some way finding you before this. I rail at Fate for keeping you so long from me.

At this moment my fingers are tingling with the desire to touch that little curl behind your ear.

You will never know, dear heart, how much will power it took in the long long time before I told you that I loved you, to keep from kissing that curl of red gold hair.

I noticed it the moment I met you. Its invitation was the most alluring thing I have ever known. It threw the transparent whiteness of your skin into high relief. It made me think of alabaster, warmed by a hidden human flame.

Strange, isn't it, that such a little thing as a lock of red gold hair will change the whole destiny of a man? I remember that for days after meeting you, I could fairly feel the electric thrill of that lock of hair, caressingly entwining itself about my fingers.

The days passed only too quickly when I was with you and Time crawled on leaden feet when you were away from me.

One moment asked myself why a girl like you should care for a man like me, and I grew cold with fear that you would not love me, and then I said to myself, "A love like mine must bring something in return." I knew that you were the one girl in all the world for me—all other women that I had known seemed but shadows flitting across a dim screen of half remembrance.

This letter, dear one, will probably seem to you the ravings of a mad man. I am mad, dearest; mad with love for you. And as I write to you tonight, I know that you and I were meant for each other from the beginning of time, and if I had not won you now, my spirit would have gone through countless eons, seeking you.

For it was written in the Book of Fate that some day—and thank God that some day is to be soon—you and I would be one!

Dear heart. I hope at this moment you are thinking of me as I am thinking of you—I hope that you wish that my lips were softly pressing tht little curl just back of your ear.

Darling, in all the universe there are only two people; and though parted, you are still close, close in the heart of—

Your lover, always,
JOHN.

St. Patrick's Day is coming. He drove the snakes out of Ireland. Will we ever have a Volstead Day?

THE MARCH BEE

A warning wind comes to my resting place
And in a mountain cloud the lost sun chills;
Night comes; and yet before she shows her face
The sun flings off the shadows, warm light fills
The valley and the clearing on the hills,
Bleak crow the moorcocks on the fen's blue plashes,
But here I warm myself with these bright looks and flashes.

And like to me the merry bumble bee
Puts fear aside, runs forth to meet the sun,
And by the ploughland's shoulder comes to see
The flowers that like him best, and seems to shun
Cold countless quaking windflowers every one,
Primroses too; but makes poor grass his choice
Where small wood-strawberry blossoms nestle and rejoice.

The maples steering round from wood to wood,
Tree-creeper flickering up the elm's greed rind,
Bold gnats that revel round my solitude
And most this pleasant been intent to find
The newborn joy, inveigle the rich mind
Long after darkness comes coldlipped to one
Still hearkening to the bee, still basking in the sun.

TODAY'S RECIPES

SALADS

In the spring the appetite is capricious. Nature is telling us we need a tonic. How can we get it more invitingly than in salads?—green, crisp vegetables, fruit acids and the oil digestion needs.

At least twice daily they should be served—for dinner, lettuce, romaine, chicory, endive or watercress, with oil vinegar or lemon juice and seasonings—for luncheon or super, fruit, with beaten cream and mayonnaise or mayonnaise alone, plue bread, perhaps cream cheese, and a cup of cocoa, making a dessert and salad combined.

Or one may offer cold meat, cut into thin pieces not more than an inch long, cold cooked vegetables and a well-seasoned French dressing. Don't forget onions and garlic—just enough to give the right flavor.

One of the best salads consists of sliced tomatoes, sliced young onions and French dressing, with tiny pieces of pickled pears.

For the best potato salad, the potatoes should be cooked in their jackets and cooled before peeling. Then they should be thinly sliced and mixed with very thinly-sliced onions, and well setasoned with salt, pepper and enougt oil to make each piece of potato shine. Cool, and in serving add a little more oil, vinegar and chopped parsley. Lettuce or some green salad plant adds to attractiveness.

Hard-boiled eggs, cooked dressing and watercress make an attractive main luncheon dish.

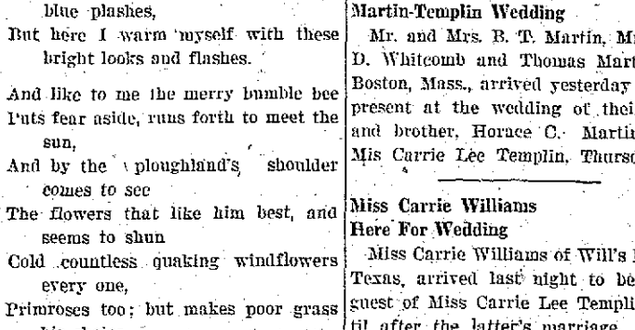
For dandelion salad, dig the green when only an inch shows above the ground—take the white green tipped stalk. Thoroughly wash, dry an dserve with hard-boiled eggs and oil, vinegar, salt and pepper.

If one has served spinach and some is left, mix it with oil, vinegar, salt and pepper and mold it in cups or small moulds. Turn onto slices of cold ham or tongue and garnish with any green slad plant.

200 MEN WOULD MARRY HER

Ever since Mildred Churchill, Macon, Ga., (shown here) was declared the prettiest girl in Wesleyan College she's been deluged with proposals. She has 200 now. They're from all over the United States and Canada and include an Illinois farmer, 83. "None of 'em for me," says Mildred.

HAW! HAW! HAW! IT IS TO LAUGH! HERE'S A CUT ON THE WOMAN'S PAGE SHOWING ANOTHER RIDICULOUS STYLE! IT IS TO LAUGH!
AND IT IS TO WEEP WHEN YOU START IN TO CRITICISE WOMEN'S CLOTHES! HOWEVER, I'LL GIVE YOU CREDIT FOR ONE THING, AND THAT IS
YOU NEVER UTTERED A WORD OF CRITICISM WHEN THE STYLE CAME IN FOR SHORT SKIRTS !!!
NEA SERVICE



There are two kinds of guests, those one never wants to see again and those one would like to have perpetually under one's roof. If the hostess and host must be carefully considerate, so must the guest. Hospitality is a privilege well worth cultivating, but it never must be imposed upon. The boor soon finds himself only tolerated, or even excluded.

THE GUEST

1: One should answer his invitation promptly and specifically, repeating place and date.

2: The guest should be punctual, whether the occasion is a dinner dance, theater or house party.

3: One must find enjoyment in everything the hostess or host proposes for his pleasure, expressing no choice unless an alternative is offered.

4: The best mannered guest makes it as easy as possible for the hostess or host to make his stay pleasant.

5: If one has been invited to an affair while he has an out-of-town friend stoping with him, it is proper for him to write and ask the hostess, asking an invitation for the friend, but one must not feel injured if the hostess be compelled to refuse.

It's bad manners for a guest to take to a social affair a friend who has not been invited.

Ewing Notes

Natt Fugate, who is attending Knoxville Business College was visiting friends here during the week end.

Dr. S. C. Chambers of Jellico was here Sunday on his way to visit his father, W. M. Chambers at Hoop.

Misses Coralee and Glessye Noe of Hubbard Springs visited friends here Saturday.

Miss Bashie Kincaid and N. B. Richmond were among the number of young folks who called on Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Kincaid at Rose Hill Saturday.

F. C. Chadwell of Shamrock was a visitor in Ewing Monday.

Among those from Ewing who attended "The Red Widow" at the Manring Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. Dan V. Richmond and Mrs. Jessie B. Smith.

T. L. McDaniel went to Appalachia Monday.

Mrs. Jessie B. Smith spent the week end with relatives in Middlesboro.

A young lady tells us her husband seems to think she signed up for love, honor and no pay.

Only a few more weeks until porch swings wish people would sit on the couch once in a while.

Glass of Salts Cleans Kidneys

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract.

Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Sorrow---You Can See a Million Years of it Mirrored in The 19-Year-Old Eyes of This Armenian Girl

By Roy Gibbons

CHICAGO, March 13—Though she is scarcely 19, the sorrows of a million years peer forth from beneath the long silken lashes of Mrs. Elisha Shahen.

For in her brief span of years she has undergone almost unbelieveable torture. She has been FORCED to see relatives murdered.

HELD captive in the harem of an Arab sheik.

BRANDED about the face with marks she can never remove.

THROWN bound into a river to die.

THREATENED continually with death and once forced to mount a scaffold to be hanged.

Starts Life Of Sorrow

"I was 11 when these terrible things began to happen,' Mrs. Shahen told me.

"Turks came to our little country place at Afioun-Karahissar, Asia minor and deported me with my family My granduncle was stoned to death.

"The other men in the village were taken into a valley and before the very eyes of their womenfolk, were riddled with machine-gun bullets.

"I was one of 250 girls tied together with a long rope and thrown into the Euphrates to drown.

"Some Arabian women swam into the stream, cut the rope and saved me with thre others. They sold us in a slave market. I was bought by Edneh a robber chief.

"Edneh had twelve wives and 67 children. He made me care for the children. He and his followers tried to make me turn Mohammedan. I would not. So he gave me only dog meat to eat and nothing to drink.

Condemned To Death

Finally Edneh condemned me to death. I was led to a roof where there were six Armenian priests. Arabs were digging out their eyes, breaking their arms and pulling out their fingernails.

"Then I fainted. When I recovered, I escaped upder cover of darkness. I was recaptured and dragged back, fastened to a horse's tail, to Edneh."

Mrs. Shahen finally was rescued by British soldiers and taken to Smyrna.

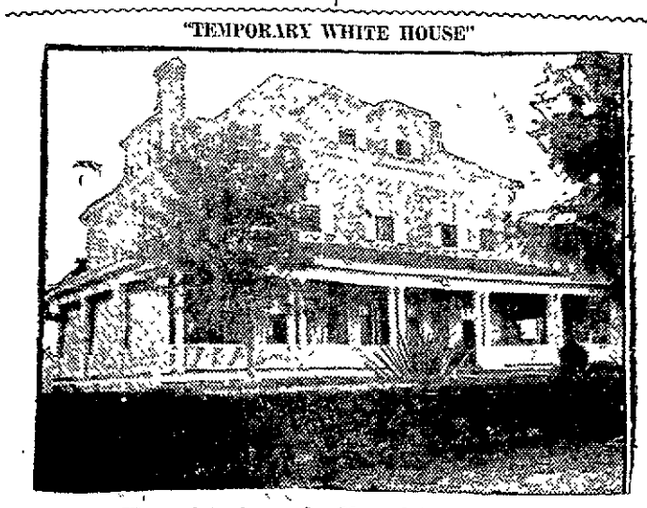
Today the ideal of a sheik as a lover, held by many American girls, is not shared by Mrs Shahen. She finds the prosaic candy shop of her husband here far preferable to the romantic love of any sheik beneath the desert moon.

The best thing about being real short is hotel blankets cover all except your head and your feet.

Snows are so heavy in some parts of Maine the trains are using calendars for time tables.

Using mouldy seed corn costs Iowa alone $21,000,000 yearly and the habit should be easy to give up.

"TEMPORARY WHITE HOUSE"



This is Ocean View, winter home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean at Palm Beach, Fla., where President and Mrs. Harding will be entertained.

TWINS--You Can Insure Self Against Them---And Against Anything Else.

KANSAS CITY, March 13—"Twins," announces the doctor. And the father, though a poor man, never winces.

Because he's insured against twins! He will receive from the company that insured him his monthly check to defray the increased cost of living.

Insurance against twins is just one of the branches recently entered by wide-awake insurance firms, explains J.H. Bryan, editor of the Insurance Magazine here.

"Lloyds," says Bryan, "recently insured the safe delivery to relatives of Hongkong of a number of Chinese who died in Boston. Values of the bodies carried from $200 for a coolie to $1750 for a mandarin.

"On Christmas day the football team of the University of West Virginia played a match game on the field at San Diego, Calif. Before it started on its transcontinental tour, it took out insurance covering not only accidents which might interfere with playing, but against rain which might cut down the gate receipts.

"Recently his publishers found ten thousand sheets of paper on which Mark Twain had written his name. Desiring to have these sheets transfered to another city, the company had them insured against loss or damage in the amount of $1 a sheet.

"Pie poisoning insurance is now advertised by a company of New York brokers. It is against liability for damages which might be claimed by the customers of those who manufacture, produce, sel, distribute or serve foodstuffs tI grew out of a case where 11 people died from eating poisoned pies.

"Recently policies were taken out on the lives of a cat, dog, rattlesnake, canary bird and elephant.

"And so it goes. There is insurance for every conceivable need—just as soon as the need is recognized and stated One company has more than 57 varieties listed in its advertisements.

"And at one time all these varieties were considered 'freaks.' But anything is a freak until you get used to it.

"Unemployment insurance in this country is considered as freakish, but in England they are insured under the unemployment act 11 500 000 million people protected against loss of income by unemployment."

THE NEWS FROM PINEVILLE

BAPTIST REVIVAL CREATES INTEREST

Dr. George Stair Draws Crowds Each Evening—To Speak at School in Mornings

PINEVILLE, Mar. 13.—The Baptist church auditorium and Sunday school room is filled each evening with an attentive and interested audience, to hear the message brought to Pineville by Dr. George R. Stair, of Boston. With the simplest language he presents the fundamental truths of the Bible and Christian religion in such an attractive way that it is an appeal to each individual.

Services are being held each morning in the church at 10:30 o'clock. Monday morning he took for his subject "The Ought of Prayer;" Tuesday morning it was "Beholding the Wondrous," for ednesday it will be "The Christians Walk;" Thursday, "What Does the Baptism of the Holy Spirit Really Mean?" Friday, "The Inner Circle;" and there will be no meetings on Saturday at all.

Wednesday night Dr. Stair will use as his subject "A Detective Who Always Gets His Man;" Thursday, "Whose Collar Do You Wear;" and Friday "Who Is Responsible for Sin."

Besides these regular services, he will address the Kiwanis Club at its regular weekly luncheon at the Pineville Hotel Tuesday night, and will speak from the courthouse steps at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Monday evening he addressed the teachers and officers of the Sunday school of the Baptist church upon the subject "The Teacher as a Soul Winner." He will address the grade school Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings.

NUMBER OF LIQUOR CASES BEFORE ROLLINS MONDAY

PINEVILLE, Mar. 13.—The following liquor cases were taken before Judge J. G. Rollins Monday: Hiram Thompson, of Middlesboro, charged with possessing and selling liquor, held for the May term of federal court at London, under $500 bond which he executed; Ewing Chadwell was held on the same charge and bond; George Price of Kildav was charged with manufacturing liquor, pleaded guilty and was committed to jail until May 15 for the London term of court.

Eph Sergent of Ags, Harlan county, was arrested by Adrian Metcalf, on the chare of white slavery, and was placed in jail in default of $2,000 bond. His hearing will be given March 17.

PINE MOUNTAIN SETTLEMENT SCHOOL WORKERS TO EUROPE

PINEVILLE, Mar. 13.—Miss Harriet Butler, graduate nurse, and Dr. Grace Fuse, who founded the medical extension work of the Pine Mountain Settlement school four years ago, left Pineville Sunday night for Cincinnati on their first lap of a six months trip to Europe.

According to Miss Butler they expect to spend most of their time in Italy, but will visit Southern France, Switzerland, and the British Isles. It is purely a pleasure trip and they will arrange their visits to various cities and countries as it pleases them when they get there.

They expect to return to the Pine Mountain settlement school in October to resume their work.

Miss Butler said that the work of the school was progressing nicely. There are seventy in attendance

DO POWERS FEAR THE KAISER'S BRIDE AS COG IN MONARCHIST PLOT?

DOORN, Holland, March 13—Speculation is rife herabouts over the reported refusal of the Greek government to allow Hermine von Schoenaich-Carclath, Princess zu Reuss, bride of the former German emperor, to go for a rest on the Greek island of Corfu.

Wiseacres also are shaking their heads over the apparent unwillingness of Dutch oficials to allow the ex-kaiser's bride to leave Holland.

Close surveillance continually is maintained over Doorn castle and Hermine leave the grounds only when she goes to shop in the village or to visit acquaintances.

Is the attitude of the Greek and Dutch governments the results of pressure on the part of the great powers?

Royalist Plot

Do the great powers feel that, if Hermine were allowed to leave Doorn, she might become a powerful cog in a plot to restore the ex-kaiser to the German throne?

Those questions are being asked—and asked seriously.

In answer, it is pointed out the ex-kaiser's marriage to Hermine was the greatest possible blow that could be death to the ex-monarch's aspiration to rule Germany again.

For the marriage not only aroused antagonism on the part of Wilhelm's family, but it wrecked his prestige all over Germany because of the high place the former empress had occupied in the hearts of all the German people.

Despite all that, rumors that the powers fear Hermine as a royalist conspirator are persistent.

Allowed to leave Doorn, Hermine could assemble groups of royalists sympathizers without arousing suspicion, it is pointed out. She could act as the kaiser's personal agent among them. She could carry messages from then back to Wilhelm.

Meanhile Hermine remains secluded at Doorn castle. Rumors that she and Wilhelm have quarreled are peddled about daily and always are followed by a crop of denials.

A report that Hermine expects to become mother also is current. It has seems to have much better basis than not been officially verified but it many rumors emanating from the shrubbery-guarded castle of mystery.

"LISTEN TO ME" TUNEFUL EXTRAVAGANZA HERE MONDAY

The brilliant musical show with a score of melodious gems that obtained instantaneous popularity with its smart cast supported by a bewitching chorus of wonderfully clever pretty girls and bewildering scenic production of silks and satins—proving the foremost success of the season, is Lecomte and Flesher's new extravaganza.

"Listen To Me" is coming to the Manring Theatre Monday night, Mar. 19. The book, lyrics and music are from the pen of Charles George, who is an author and composer of the first rank. Mr. George designed the costumes, superintended the construction of scenery and staged the production, which is an endorsement to any musical organization.

"Listen To Me" touches splendor in every respect. The scenic display from the roof tops of Times Square—New York through Satan's palace in Hades, to the artic region of the north pole melting into candyland, shows the finish of a master, while an entrancing fantastic story is beautifully imbedded mid an enticing score of wonderful gems.

All Officers Reelected at Meeting Yesterday Afternoon—Girls' Glee Club Gives Program

The annual election of officers was held by the Middlesboro Woman's Club yesterday afternoon. The officers as announced in yesterday's Daily News, are Mrs. D. G. Hinks, president; Mrs. J. T. Alderson, first vice-president; Mrs. H. H. Saunders, second vice-president; Mrs. Hugh Allen, recording secretary; Mrs. John Miller, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edwin Rhorer, treasurer; Mrs. R. K. Judy, auditor.

The nominating committee, through Mrs. E. S. Helburn, chairman, expressed themselves as well pleased with the present administration and upon their recommendation all the officers weer reelected with the exception of Mrs. S. H. Fulkerson who is leaving shortly to make her home in Louisville and was succeeded as treasurer by Mrs. Edwin Rhorer.

Under the direction of Miss Lillian Seay, the Girls' Glee Club of the high school sang "The Gypsy Chorus". Solo parts were assumed by Miss Ruth McClure, Miss Alice Gloster and Miss Winnie Pippin; other members of the chorus were, Miss Doris Campbell, accompanist, Miss Helen Burnett, Miss Vada Chumley, Miss Kathryn Callison, Miss Pearl Euster, Miss Charline Gagle, Miss Agnes Herd, Miss Elizabeth Hurst, Miss Adeline Morris, Miss Louise More, Miss Rena Moore, Miss Ola Nelson, Miss Lucile Short and Miss Lila Wilson. A rising vote of thanks was accorded the Glee Club and Miss Seay by members of the club.

On behalf of Mrs. Wilbur Hollingsworth, chairman of the civics department who was unable to be present, Mrs. Hinks proposed that the woman's club observe Arbor Day by planting trees around the new outlying school buildings. A committee from the civics department had conferred with Superintendent Bradner who expressed himself well pleased with the project. No definite action was taken in the matter by the club.

The club will be represented at the State Federation convention by Mrs. D G. Hinks, president, Mrs A. B Gloster, Mrs. E. S. Helburn, Mrs. L. L. Roberston and Mrs. C. K. Brosheer. The convention will be held at Winchester in May.

BAPTISTS BEAT PRESBYTERIANS

Score Is 19 to 18 in Hard Fought Game—McWilliams Star of Inter-Church Game

The Baptist Sunday school team beat the Presbyterians in an extremely close and interesting game at the Booneway gymnasium last night they score being 19 to 18. Both sides played hard and well during the entire game. At the end of the first half the score stood 14 to 6 in favor of the Presbyterians and chances of their winning seemed favorable. The Baptists, however, picked up in the last half and gained 13 points to 4 for the Presbyterians McWilliams was the star player of the evening

Coach Porter refereed the game. The lineup follows:

Baptist	Presbyterian
Smith (G)	Faulkner
Browning (G)	Schneider
Hatfield (C)	Lewis
Brown (C)	Crain
McWilliams (F)	Callison

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

"Force Is Wrecking World," Say Crusaders as They Open Drive To Bring About Respect For Law

By Roy Gibbons

CHICAGO, March 13—With the opening gun of a national drive to prevent needless slaughter of birds, a campaign will be started here soon with workers pledged to uproot all destructive social forces as symbolized by the gun-toter and by advocates of might makes right.

Joe Beatty Burtt, Chicago attorney, generally given credit for promulgating the sane Fourth of July movement, heads the body a chairman.

Almost a score of governors, several senators and a small army of influential citizens have been enlisted in the campaign which shortly will make its debut under the auspices of the Michigan Audubon Society.

The committee plans to open its drive by erecting an outdoor exhibit of bird houses along a 500-mile stretch of the West Michigan Pike and its tributaries

Following this will come a bombardment of literature and pamphlets showin the silhouetted pictures of a man holdin a still smokin rifle with a dead bird lying at his feet, and bearing the caption "For Shame" in heavy type

International Figure

Burtt is internationally know as an idealist who accomplishes what ever he sets out to do.

He does not believe in punishment and says the world has gone crazy with a reign of conspiracies and counter-conspiracies motivated by people who have axes to grind

"It is impossible to legislate restraint," he says. "We'll have to dig underneath and cut the ulcers through preventation by education.

'Contempt for one law is breeding contempt for all. That's why we have bird-killers and man-killers, robbers and exploiters.

"This aggregation represents the powers of force. You can't drive them out by punishment. Such treatment cuts the thistle and leaves the roots still buried for another harvest.

"We're starting out to save the birds. And after that weg re going to drive for the observance of every law, on the calendar. If each is observed the ones not wanted will be stricken from the list.

"It's foolishness to start a crusade against bird-killers alone to the neglect of other violations. That would fail, for it means nothing more than putting another axe to grid.

"Trying to do or correct anything by force cannot succeed. Witness the prohibition act. The Anti-Saloon Leagu sprang up as a mono-purposed agency to enforce it. Then came the agencies for modifiration. You have a seething mass of conspiracies and nothing more.

"Force is at the bottom of all present-day evil. It hs made the flapper, the drug addict and the bootlegger. It has driven the world crazy. We've got to stop or be ruined.

"Force breeds conspiracies. Conspiracies overthrow each other.

"Opposed to force is education. Coupled with preventation it can eliminate 'evil through co-operation."

THINKS RADIO WILL RUN WORLD

Steinmetz Says Motive Power of the Future Will All Be Transmitted

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. March 13—will factories of the future be driven by radio power?

Theoretically it is possible and it may come as an international development, says Charles P. Steinmetz, electricl wizard

Not by directed radio—power transmission similar to present communication transmission—for he dismisses that as "a very small possibility."

What he sees as world industrial power taken from immense waves encircling the globe, thrown into space by a mighty central sending station and measured in millions of kilowatts—if science can only find the super electro-magnetic wave that will make this possible.

Here is the wizard's latest jolt for the scientific world:

By Dr. Charles P. Steinmet.., Chief Consulting Engineer, General Electric Company

Radio power transmission by directed waves seems a small possibility because the power is scattered too much except over moderate distances.

Another posibility, theoretically, is by resonant vibrations or standing waves. Suppose we had a very large sending station sending out electromagnetic waves not of hundreds but of hundred thousand of millions of kilowatts; and supose we could find a wave length where the absorption in the passage of the wave through space is suficiently small as to be negligible compared with the amount of power.

Assuming at first there were no receiving stations. Then the waves issuing from the sending stations would circle the globe and return to the sending station. And if the wave length is adjusted so that the return wave concides with the outgoing wave, it would return its power. Thus little power would be required from the sending station to maintain such a system of high-power standing waves, only enough to supply the losses.

Suppose we erect a second station, tuned for the same wave length as the sending station. It would resonate ith the standing electro-magnetic wave issuing from the sending station. thereby stop its passage by absorbing its energy. It would as we may say, punch a hole in the standing wave sheet coming from the sending station.

Power then would flow int this hole; the sending station would begin to send out additional power to maintain the wave sheet, and this power would be received by the receiving station.

This would give a real radio power transmission. Any receiving station of suitable design would be able to pick up power from the universal power supply carried by the standing wave sheet covering the earth.

Idealism Is Bed Rock of America's Progress; U. S. Has Given More Of It Than She Has Received From Old World, Says Hoover, Defining Our Society

This is the second of a series of three excerpts this paper will present through the courtesy of Doubleday, Page & Co. from "American Individualism," the new book in which Herbert Hoover, now Secretary of Commerce, and well beloved for his many services to humanity by Americans of all political beliefs, seeks to define the treasures of American citizenship and civilization.

By Herbert Hoover

(c) U&U

Whatever may be the case with regard to Old World individualism (and we have given more back to Europe than we received from her) the truth that is important for us to grasp to-day is that there is a world of difference between the principles and spirit of Old World individualism and that which we have developed in our own country.

We have, in fact, a special social system of our own We have made it ourselves from materials brought in revolt from conditions in Europe. We have lived it; we constantly improve it; we have seldom tried to define it. It abhors autocracy and does not argue with it, but fights it. It is not capitalism, or socialism, or syndicalism, nor a cross breed of them. Like most Americans, I refuse to be damned by anybody's word-classification of it, such as "capitalism", "plutocracy", "proletariat", or "middle-class", or any other, or to any kind of compartment that is based on the assumption of some group dominating somebody else.

The social force in which I am interested is far higher and far more precious a thing than all these It springs from something infinitely more enduring; it springs from the one source of human progress—that each individual shall be given the chance and stimulation for development of the best with which he has been endowed in heart and mind; it is the sole source of progress; it is American individualism

The rightfulness of our individualism can rest either on philosophic, political, economic or spiritual grounds. It can rest on the ground of being the only safe avenue to further human progress.

From the instincts of kindness, pity, fealty to family and race; the love of liberty; the mystical yearnings for spiritual things; the desire for fuller expression of the creative faculties; the impulses of service to community and nation, are moulded the ideals of our people. And the most potent force in society is its ideals. If one were to attempt to delimit the potency of instinct and ideals, it would be found that while instinct dominates in our preservation yet the great propelling force of progress is right ideals. It is true we do not realize the ideal; not even a single person personifies that realization. It is therefore not surprising that society, a collection of persons, a necessary maze of compromises, can not realize it. But that it has ideals, that they revolve in a system that makes for steady advance of them is the first thing.

With the growth of ideals through education, with the higher realization of freedom, of justice, of humanity, of service, the selfish impulses become less and less dominant, and if we ever reach the millennium, they will disappear in the aspirations and satisfactions of pure altruism. But for the next several generations we dare not abandon self-interest as a motive force to leadership and to production, lest we die.

The will-o'-the-wisp of all breeds of socialism is that they contemplate a motivation of human animals by altruism alone. It necessitates a bureaucracy of the entire population, in which, having obliterated the economic stimulation of each member, the fine gradations of character and ability are to be arranged in relative authority by ballot or more likely by a Tammany Hall or a Bolshevist party, or some other form of tyranny. The proof of the futility of these ideas as a stimulation to the development and activity of the individual does not lie alone in the ghastly failure of Russia, but it also lies in our own failure in attempts at nationalized industry.
